Lee Garvin and his Portsmouth team will be the attraction at the ball yard this afternoon. Though the Fortsmouth team has not been going so good recently, Garvin has always managed to prove a serious proposition to Richmond. There is a difference of one and one-baif games between Richmond and Pe-

James Barnett—notice that he has graduated from Jim—for the third time in a row smashed the hopes of the handful of Richmond fans who were present. Colonel Boykin, who seaboardairlines most of the time, and works as Police Commissioner as his regular job, said as how he would inflict severe punishment upon Mr. Barnett, provided said Mr. Barnett lived within the colonel's bailiwick. Mr. Barnett is substituting for Heinrich Busch, while Heinrich is nursing an attack of malaria fever.

Ordinarily Mr. Barnett is by no means feroclous. He is easily handled; means ferocious. He is easily handled; a docle creature with nothing but a glove and two spiked shoes to commend him. Since Busch has been sick he has developed into the most horrible Nemesis, with an appetite that cannot be assuaged, not even though he devours every individual who carries the name of Elchmond on his shirtfront. His club has never struck herror in the hearts of youngsters seeking the bubble reputation from the hill in the centre of the diamond. He has been a casual gunner until now, hitting sporadically, as it were, but mostly where some waiting defender could demolish what he sent out.

In this series, just completed to-day, In this series, just completed to-day, he has been a killjoy, a marplot, a seventanged demon and many other things that the postal laws prevent being offered publicly in a newspaper. Fortunately, we didn't lose this last game; neither did we win it. Win Clarke, the kind gentleman that he is, called it after the fourteenth on account of darkness—a very wise move—though it was by no means as dark as it was in Richmond last Saturday when Richmond and Norfolk essayed two Richmond and Norfolk essayed two games of ball.

Until James Barnett sallied forth in Until James Barnett sallied forth in the eighth inning, things were looking exceedingly bright for Fainer Byrd. At that time Richmond had three scores and Petersburg but one. Two were out of the way with Damrau on first and Spencer on third when Barnett started. Jim Vance wanted to walk him but Manager Griffin, figuring that it took a three-base slam to score two and two singles to accomplish the xceedingly bright for Father Byrd. At that time Richmond had three scores and Petersburg but one. Two were ut of the way with Damrau on first harted. Jim Vance wanted to walk im but Manager Griffin, figuring that took a three-base slam to score two and two singles to accomplish the arme purpose, advised against this bit strategy.

Vance and Cooper pitched remark-able ball. The ex-Petersburg pitcher used his wits against his former team-mates, and was eminently successful. Cooper in the earlier stages was found rather frequently by the Griffmen, but lowerds the fullshown stronger. towards the finish got stronger, and when the game was called, was going better than at any other stage. three hits and a stolen base. When it takes such a combination to count one run something is wrong.

Newton's hit, his grab of second, and Bresnahan's double to left, scored again in the second. The final tally came in the cighth, when Griffin doubles and cashed on Raley's kelet to Krepps, which he beat out. That was all of the secring, so far as the Coirs were concerned.

Petersburg never gave up the battle. In the third Cooper singled and scored on Krepp's double. Krepps led the leighth with a single through Bressahan. Laughlin hit, but Damrau forced him at second, sending Krepps to third, immediately thereafter Mr. Earnett came through with that awful knock of which something has been said, and the two scored, kinking the snock of which something has been said, and the two scored, kinking the same and letting it finish a draw.

After that eighth, both clubs tried to push just one run across, and each had chances. It was another day of rood baseball, and cracks in the defense were few and far between, those preprints basiles as effect on the occuring having no effect on the out rome. Towards the close Brennegan who didn't like a decision rendered by Umpire Clarke, forgot himself, called Clarke a name the arbiter dion't like and was chased.
